Gulf Coast Real Estate YouTube: Competitive Analysis & Growth Playbook

Prepared: April 1, 2026 For: Dave & Kelly — Big Beach AL / AntiGravity Projects

---

Executive Summary

We analyzed 7 YouTube channels (6 unique competitors) in the Gulf Shores / Orange Beach / Baldwin County real estate space. The market is wide open — the top competitor has only ~5.9K subscribers, nobody has cracked 10K, and production quality across the board is low. There is a massive opportunity to dominate this niche with better content, higher production value, and a strategic posting cadence.

The bottom line: The first person to bring real production quality and lifestyle content (beyond "talking head in front of a condo") will own this market.

Competitor Scoreboard

CHANNEL	SUBS	VIDEOS	POST FREQ	STYLE	KEY STRENGTH
Andy Hollis (@obaliving / @alabamabeachliving)	~2.4K	Many	4x/week	Talking head + Google Map tours	$60M+ closed from YT alone, no paid ads. Removed Shorts deliberately.
Jeff Nelson (@loweralagent)	Est. 1-10K	360+	1-2x/week	Talking head + drone + walkthroughs	Massive content moat. Every neighborhood & condo complex covered.
The Short Term Shop (@TheShortTermShop)	~5.9K	~56	1x/week (Tuesdays)	Podcast interview repurpose	National brand, 2 books, WSJ/Forbes press. Podcast-first (1M+ downloads).
Jess & Tony (@LivingInLowerAlabama)	~3.1K	Moderate	2x/week	Couple talking head + B-roll	Chicago transplant credibility, military connection, full Baldwin County coverage.
Jess & Tony (@LivinginGulfShoresAlabama)	~2.4K	Small	Irregular	Same as above	Secondary/spin-off channel — hasn't broken through.
Phillip & Tasha (@gulfshoresphillipandtasha)	Small	Unknown	Unknown	Couple format, lifestyle + RE	Newer entrants, building cross-platform (IG Reels active).

Key discovery: @alabamabeachliving and @obaliving are the SAME person (Andy Hollis).

What's Actually Driving Views (Ranked)

1. "Moving to [City Name]" Videos — THE #1 Format

Every successful channel leans on this. These capture high-intent search traffic — people literally Googling "moving to Gulf Shores Alabama." This is the bread and butter.

2. Condo/Property Complex Deep-Dives

Gulf Shores and Orange Beach are condo markets. People search for specific complexes (Turquoise Place, Phoenix West, etc.). Jeff Nelson has an individual video for virtually every complex — that's his moat.

3. Cost of Living / Pros & Cons Videos

Classic high-search-volume formats. "Consideration stage" content that captures undecided viewers.

4. City vs. City Comparisons

"Gulf Shores vs Orange Beach" — decision-stage content for people narrowing down where to live.

5. Google Map Virtual Tours

Andy Hollis's signature format. Unique, low-production-cost, perfect for out-of-state buyers who can't visit yet.

6. Personal Story / "Would We Do It Again?" Content

Jess & Tony's strongest play. Authenticity and relatability build trust with relocators.

What's NOT Working

- YouTube Shorts — Andy Hollis tested and removed them. They attract entertainment seekers, not buyers.
- Podcast repurpose without YouTube optimization — Short Term Shop has massive brand authority but only 5.9K YT subs because content isn't YouTube-native.

- Irregular posting — The Gulf Shores channel (~2.4K subs) posts inconsistently and hasn't broken through.
- Generic channel handles — Auto-generated handles like `-z8n` signal an unoptimized channel.

The Gaps We Can Exploit

GAP	OPPORTUNITY
No high-production value	Every competitor is talking-head-with-iPhone. Professional B-roll, cinematic drone, polished editing would immediately stand out.
No "insider lifestyle" content	Everyone focuses on relocation logistics. Nobody shows daily life — morning coffee spots, hidden beaches, farmers markets, Friday night in Fairhope. This is what goes VIRAL.
No data-driven market content	Monthly updates with actual numbers, charts, and analysis would position us as the analytical expert.
No smart Shorts strategy	Andy removed his, but the answer is Shorts that serve brand awareness + algorithm discovery, while long-form drives leads.
No local business collabs	Restaurant features, business owner interviews create cross-promotion. Nobody is doing this.
No show/series format	Everything is standalone. Named weekly series create appointment viewing and brand recognition.

Detailed Competitor Profiles

Andy Hollis — OBA Living (@obaliving / @alabamabeachliving)

Background: eXp Realty agent in Orange Beach. 30+ years in sales (Kirby vacuums in high school, 25 years in car sales management). Relocated to the beach after losing both parents within 9 months.

What he does right:

- $60M+ in real estate closed directly from YouTube leads — zero paid advertising
- Hyper-local focus on Orange Beach / Gulf Shores dominates search results for that area
- Removed Shorts to filter out low-intent viewers — focuses only on long-form for buyers

- "Magnetic Marketing" approach: warm leads who already feel like they know him before calling
- Stopped spending $1,500/month on Zillow/Realtor.com after YouTube became his pipeline
- Posts 4x/week — aggressive cadence that compounds SEO visibility
- Describes his style as "part MTV Cribs, part Southern Living"
- Now teaches his method via "Agents of Freedom" program on Skool (65 members)

What he could do better:

- Production quality is basic — room for someone to outclass him visually
- No lifestyle/community content beyond property tours
- No collaboration with local businesses
- No data/market analysis content

Key lesson: Patience. He went 4 months with zero leads before the phone started ringing. Consistency through the "dead zone" is what separates winners from quitters.

Jeff Nelson — Your Lower AL Agent (@loweralagent)

Background: 20 years of real estate experience across Virginia, North Carolina, and Alabama. Relocated to Lower Alabama in 2012. Self-described "real estate website mad scientist." IXL Real Estate — Eastern Shore, based in Fairhope.

What he does right:

- 360+ video library — a massive long-tail SEO moat that would take years to replicate
- Systematically covers EVERY neighborhood, EVERY condo complex, EVERY city in Baldwin County
- Multi-platform ecosystem: YouTube + website (livegulfshoreslocal.com) + Instagram + Facebook + LinkedIn + Pinterest all cross-linked
- Refreshes content annually ("2025 Edition" updates) to stay current in search
- Authentic, unscripted style: "Just me talking with no canned rhetoric"
- Weekly neighborhood tours keep the content flowing

What he could do better:

- Production quality could be elevated
- No lifestyle content — purely real estate focused
- No series/show format to build appointment viewing
- Website is content-rich but could funnel better to YouTube

Key lesson: Volume wins. Geographic farming through content — systematically create a video for every searchable topic in your service area and you build an unbreakable moat over time.

Avery Carl — The Short Term Shop (@TheShortTermShop)

Background: Country's largest Airbnb-specific real estate brokerage. 5,000+ investors served across 20 markets. #1 team worldwide at eXp Realty 3x. Avery personally owns 250+ doors, bought first rental at 26 on $37K salary, millionaire by 31. Two bestselling BiggerPockets books.

What she does right:

- Massive brand authority (WSJ, NYT, Forbes, USA Today coverage)
- Podcast has 1M+ downloads, 242 episodes, 4.9/5 rating
- Deep niche expertise in short-term rental investing
- Interview format brings diverse expert perspectives
- Consistent weekly posting (every Tuesday)

What she could do better:

- YouTube is clearly secondary — only 5.9K subs despite massive brand
- Content is podcast repurpose, not YouTube-native (no B-roll, no property tours, no visual content)
- Thumbnail and title optimization appears minimal
- Not leveraging YouTube's visual medium at all

Key lesson: Brand authority alone doesn't win YouTube. You need YouTube-native content. But her niche credibility model is powerful — deep expertise in one thing beats shallow coverage of everything.

Jess & Tony — Living In Lower Alabama (@LivingInLowerAlabama / @LivinginGulfShoresAlabama)

Background: Husband-wife realtor team at eXp Realty, based in Daphne/Fairhope area. Relocated from Chicago. Tony is a Navy (2007-2012) and Air Force Reserves (2013-2022) veteran. Active since September 2020.

What they do right:

- Transplant credibility — they made the exact move their target audience is considering
- Military background connects with a significant local demographic
- Cover the full Baldwin County corridor (not just Gulf Shores)
- 2 videos/week posting cadence on main channel
- Multi-platform approach: YouTube + blog + Instagram + Facebook + Vimeo

What they could do better:

- Running two channels dilutes their effort (main channel ~3.1K, second ~2.4K)
- Second channel has auto-generated handle (-z8n) — not optimized
- Inconsistent posting on secondary channel
- Production quality is basic
- Heavy competition with Jeff Nelson in same geographic space

Key lesson: Personal relocation stories resonate deeply with the target audience. But splitting effort across two channels hurts growth — consolidate and dominate one.

Phillip & Tasha Smith (@gulfshoresphillipandtasha)

Background: Married couple, licensed Realtors with eXp Realty in Baldwin County. Previously worked in Missouri. Tasha has 6+ years of real estate experience.

What they do right:

- Active on Instagram with Reels (building cross-platform)
- Couple format is relatable
- Mixing real estate marketing with Gulf Coast lifestyle/entertainment

What they could do better:

- Very small YouTube presence — limited data available
- Appear to be newer to content creation
- Need consistent posting schedule and YouTube optimization

Key lesson: Newer entrants prove the space is growing. Being early with a strong strategy matters.

Step-by-Step Growth Playbook

Phase 1: Foundation (Weeks 1-4)

Step 1: Channel Setup & Branding

- Claim a clean, memorable handle (e.g., @BigBeachAL or your brand name)
- Professional channel banner with your face, the beach, and a clear tagline ("Your Gulf Coast Real Estate Guide")
- Channel trailer (60-90 sec): Who you are, why you're here, what viewers will get
- Organize playlists from day one: "Moving to Gulf Shores," "Condo Tours," "Orange Beach Living," "Market Updates," "Local Life"
- About section loaded with keywords: Gulf Shores, Orange Beach, Fairhope, Baldwin County, Alabama Gulf Coast, relocation, real estate

Step 2: Equipment (Keep It Simple)

- iPhone 15/16 Pro (4K video + cinematic mode)
- DJI Mini 4 Pro drone (~$760 — the aerial footage gap is huge)
- Wireless lapel mic (DJI Mic 2 or Rode Wireless Go)
- Simple editing: CapCut (free) or DaVinci Resolve (free)
- Canva for thumbnails

Step 3: Keyword Research

- Install TubeBuddy or VidIQ (free tiers work) to find what people actually search
- Target these proven search terms first:

  - "Gulf Shores vs Orange Beach"
  - "Best condos in Orange Beach"
  - "Living in Fairhope Alabama"
  - "Is Gulf Shores a good place to live?"
  - "Pros and cons of living in [each city]"

"Gulf Shores in the Off-Season — Why Locals Love It" 20. "Friday Night in Fairhope — Downtown Walking Tour"

Step 5: Posting Schedule

- 3 long-form videos per week (Mon / Wed / Fri)
- 2-3 Shorts per week (Tue / Thu / Sat) for discovery only:
  - Quick local tips ("Best sunset spot in Gulf Shores")
  - Reaction/POV clips ("POV: You just moved to the beach")
  - Teaser clips from long-form videos

Step 6: The Thumbnail & Title Formula

Titles:

- Lead with location: "Gulf Shores Alabama"
- Include year: "2026"
- Emotional hooks: "Everything You Need to Know," "Honest Take," "What No One Tells You"

- Example: "Moving to Gulf Shores Alabama in 2026 — What No One Tells You"

Thumbnails:

- Your face with an expressive reaction (surprised, excited, concerned)
- Bold text overlay (3-5 words max): "DON'T MOVE HERE" or "HIDDEN GEMS"
- Beach/property in background
- Bright, saturated colors
- Canva template — reuse for brand consistency

Phase 3: Differentiation (Weeks 4-12)

Step 7: Create Signature Series

- "Beach House Breakdown" — weekly condo/home tour with honest value analysis
- "Gulf Coast Insider" — weekly lifestyle: restaurants, events, hidden spots
- "Market Minute" — monthly data-driven market update with charts and real numbers

Step 8: The Lifestyle Content Advantage

Film content nobody else is making:

- Morning routines at the beach
- Sunset timelapses (drone)
- Walking tours of downtown areas
- Local event coverage (festivals, farmers markets, fishing tournaments)
- "A week living in [City]" vlogs
- Seasonal content ("What Gulf Shores looks like in January")

Step 9: Collaboration Strategy

- Feature local restaurant/shop owners — they share the video with their audience
- Guest appearances with agents in non-competing markets
- Collabs with local influencers: fishing guides, charter captains, chefs

Step 10: Community Building

- End every video with a specific CTA: "Drop a comment — what's your #1 question about moving here?"
- Reply to EVERY comment within 24 hours (signals engagement to algorithm)
- Create a free Facebook group: "Gulf Coast Movers & Shakers"

- Pin a comment on each video linking to a free relocation guide (email capture)

Phase 4: Scale & Dominate (Months 3-12)

Step 11: The Content Moat (Jeff Nelson's Playbook)

Systematically cover EVERY sub-topic:

- Every major condo complex gets its own video
- Every neighborhood gets its own video
- Every "vs" comparison gets its own video
- Refresh top performers annually ("2027 Edition")
- Goal: 100+ videos in year one

Step 12: Repurpose Everything

Each long-form video becomes:

- 2-3 Shorts (clip best moments)
- An Instagram Reel
- A TikTok
- A blog post on your website (SEO gold)
- A Facebook post
- An email newsletter segment

Step 13: Lead Conversion System

- Free relocation guide PDF (email gate) — promoted in every video
- Link to CRM/website in every description
- "Book a free call" link in channel banner and descriptions
- Track which videos generate leads (UTM parameters)

Step 14: Analytics & Optimization (Monthly)

- Check YouTube Studio for:
  - Which videos get the most search traffic (make more like them)
  - Audience retention graphs (where do people drop off?)
  - Click-through rate on thumbnails (aim for 5%+, fix any under 3%)
- Double down on what works. Stop making what doesn't.

90-Day Milestone Targets

METRIC	30 DAYS	60 DAYS	90 DAYS
Videos published	12-15	25-30	40-45
Subscribers	100-300	500-1,000	1,000-2,500
Monthly views	1,000-3,000	5,000-15,000	15,000-50,000
First inbound lead	Maybe	Likely	Should be consistent

Reality check: Andy Hollis went 4 months with zero leads before his phone started ringing. Consistency through the "dead zone" is what separates winners from quitters. Every competitor who gave up is why there's still room for us.

Why We'll Win

1. Higher production quality than anyone in this market (drone + editing)
2. Lifestyle content nobody else is making (shareable, viral potential)
3. Consistent 3x/week posting that compounds over time
4. Named series that build brand recognition and appointment viewing
5. Strategic Shorts for discovery (not spray-and-pray)
6. Data-driven market content that positions us as the analytical expert
7. Collaboration with local businesses for cross-promotion
8. A proper lead conversion funnel (guide > email > CRM > client)

The playing field is wide open. The top competitor has only ~5.9K subs. Nobody has cracked 10K. The first person to bring real production quality and strategy will dominate this market.
